Course Description

One of the major challenges facing first responders intervening in intimate partner violence situations is figuring out who is the true victim, and who is the perpetrator.

This training is designed to assist in making these types of determinations.

Attendees will review how these situations can be looked at in context to gain a better view of what is going on. This review will include a discussion about trauma and its potential impact, as well as what to look for and what to listen for in these types of calls. Based on these factors attendees will be provided with tools to assess self-defense and make predominant aggressor determinations.

This project was supported by Grant No. 15JOVW-23-GK-05483-MUMU awarded by the Office on Violence Against Women, U.S. Department of Justice. The opinions, findings, conclusions, and recommendations expressed in this publication/program/exhibition are those of the author(s) and do not necessarily reflect the views of the U.S. Department of Justice.
