GRANT-FUNDED CLASSROOM-BASED TRAINING

TUITION FREE

Deadly Intent – Investigating Strangulation and DV

Presented by:

RTI | REVELATIONS TRAINING

Jayme Dozier
Jim O'Gorman
Aaron Rosen

Jayme, Jim, and Aaron are a team of passionate cops, dedicated to providing the best possible training for their fellow officers. As cops themselves, they understand the challenges that come with the job, so their trainings are provided with necessary tools and knowledge officers need to be successful in their roles. All three are POST Certified Instructors with over 22 years of law enforcement experience.

November 3-6, 2026
8:00am – 4:00pm

Idaho POST Academy
Building 3 – Classroom A

This four-day class is built for both patrol officers and detectives. You will learn to identify the predominant aggressor when both parties are injured or lying, document bruising, the naked eye can't see, and build a case that finds the truth whether the victim shows up or not. When you clear a strangulation call with no charges, you may be releasing the person most likely to kill next.

Most of offenders who kill police officers have a prior strangulation history. Strangulation leaves no visible mark most of the time, so if you're waiting for a bruise to tell you this is serious, you'll miss it, and you'll miss the suspect the science says is most likely to escalate. This course teaches you to see what is often overlooked and how to up your investigations.

You will leave this course with a standardized strangulation documentation checklist you can run on your next call, interview techniques that hold up when the victim won't talk to you again, and a courtroom-ready case built right the first time instead of patched together later.

This isn't theory. It's built by people who've investigated these cases, watched DV cases fail and have reverse-engineered why to prevent it.

Email or fax the registration form to:
Cathy Weddle, cathy.weddle@post.idaho.gov
Fax: 208-884-7295 Office phone: 208-884-7321

REGISTRATION FORM

Deadly Intent – Investigating Strangulation and DV

TUITION FREE

November 3-6, 2026

8:00am – 4:00pm

Idaho POST Academy, Building 3 – Classroom A

This four-day class is built for both patrol officers and detectives. You will learn to identify the predominant aggressor when both parties are injured or lying, document bruising the naked eye can't see, and build a case that finds the truth whether the victim shows up or not. When you clear a strangulation call with no charges, you may be releasing the person most likely to kill next.

Most of offenders who kill police officers have a prior strangulation history. Strangulation leaves no visible mark most of the time, so if you're waiting for a bruise to tell you this is serious, you'll miss it, and you'll miss the suspect the science says is most likely to escalate. This course teaches you to see what is often overlooked and how to up your investigations.

You will leave this course with a standardized strangulation documentation checklist you can run on your next call, interview techniques that hold up when the victim won't talk to you again, and a courtroom-ready case built right the first time instead of patched together later.

This isn't theory. It's built by people who've investigated these cases, watched DV cases fail and have reverse-engineered why to prevent it.

Name_____

Agency_____

Phone_____

Email_____

POST ID#_____

Email or fax this form to: Cathy Weddle, cathy.weddle@post.idaho.gov Fax: 208-884-7295
Office phone: 208-884-7321